

Job Spec: Senior .Net Engineer

Make your move at Trackmatic

We're looking for a Senior .Net Engineer who wants to make an impact. If you eat, sleep and breathe in C#, keep reading. Here at Trackmatic, we help top South African businesses manage their transport and logistics needs with a world-class SaaS solution. We're a work hard, play hard company, and we're as passionate about building real innovation as we are about Tequila Fridays at the office!

Your new day-to-day

A big part of what makes the Trackmatic system tick (and our clients happy) is a complex messaging-based architecture built using .Net technologies. Our microservice architecture gives us incredible flexibility, but it's not a challenge for the faint-hearted!

You'll work with a team devoted to managing and enhancing our microservices using an array of tools and methodologies. Your broad knowledge and deep problem-solving skills will be put to use every day. Along with that, you'll need plenty of drive, an in-it-to-win-it character, and a decent sense of humour too.

The Senior .Net Engineer will get plenty of freedom working in a small, focused team. If you want to flex your dev skills and make a real difference on a project, this role is for you.

Your CV will impress us by showing...

- 5+ years of experience working in C#
- A solid grasp on Object-Orientated Programming along with related design patterns and methodologies
- A deep understanding of SOA and how to implement it in a real-world environment
- Solid grasp of the .Net environment and the tools which come with it
- Bonus points if you have experience working with messaging systems such as RabbitMQ, NServiceBus, and MSMQ

What you get

The package will be between R45,000 and R65,000 per month (cost to company.) Oh, and we weren't kidding about Tequila Fridays!

Sound good?

If this job spec describes you eerily well, we want to meet you! Make yourself known
